

The 8th Arrow Lecture

Career and Family: Collision Course or Confluence of Desires?

Delivered by:

Claudia Goldin

Henry Lee Professor of Economics, Harvard University

Discussants:

Kenneth J. Arrow

Joan Kenney Professor of Economics and Professor of Operations Research, Emeritus, Stanford University

Christopher Flinn

Professor of Economics, New York University

Joseph E. Stiglitz

University Professor, Columbia University

In recent decades, many highly educated women have successfully navigated career roadblocks that had hindered equally gifted women in the past. More recently a greater fraction of college graduate women have achieved family as birthrates have been rising. What happens when there are more kids and more careers? Is it a collision course or a successful confluence of desires?

Thursday, December 10, 2015

6:00 – 8:00 p.m.

Columbia University, International Affairs Building, Room 1501

RSVP at arrowlecture2015.eventbrite.com

 COLUMBIA | SIPA
Center on Global Economic Governance

Columbia Economics
Program for Economic Research

Initiative for Policy Dialogue

Based at Columbia University

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY PRESS